Where Styles Vary

There are certain fashions which are subject to no rule; Mo-lyneux, for instance, recommends the streamline or waistline with no belt, and Vionnet has not deserted the full hemline.Trains in the evening are carried over the arm for dancing. The little dinner dress, like the formal afternoon dress, may be long to the feet, though the afternoon dress will be of full ankle length only. All long slim skirts are slit in the hem. Schiaparelli sometimes makes a pleat to show the ankle and instep. There is an Oriental air about the full sleeve which drops from a low shoulder line, about velvet, metal tissue, and satin turbans, and about some wraps. For the morning homespun woollen tweeds make tailored coats and skirts with blouses.
The skirt is slim, but the jacket, with pockets and belt, may be loose or may fit, easily and be quite plain. The bloused coat is short, the fitting coat a little longer, the sack coat half or three-quarter length. There are overcoats fastened at the side or with a belt.Blouses and tunics are numerous; knitted jumpers with long sleeves slightly full above the wrist, and open necks are still in fashion. Creed makes blouses of woollen cashmere to go with his tweeds; they are short at the back, and of waistcoat length in front;
the neckline is low.

Woollen Crepe

A plain bright woollen crepe blouse may match a hat or hat trimming. A light skirt may go with a dark blouse—a brown blouse, for instance, with a light beige skirt. Tunics, which are of rich afternoon materials, may be long or short; the hemline is usually full. The tailored coat-frock may go with a cape or a coat.
Capes in one form or another are common. A cape of sealakin, or lined with it, is long and wide. A long, slim, and closely fitting cape with fin-shaped flaps is made by Jeanne Lanvin of black astrakhan or of woollen materials trimmed with it. Many detachable little capes can be worn with a dress alone. A long coat may have cape sleeves, a bloused back like a dolman, and a straight front. Velvet, diagonal striped, woollen materials, silk broadcloth, hairy wool-lens, tweeds, and flat furs are the materials for long coats and coats and skirts.Black velvet and black satin are much used for afternoon dresses, and velvet is often put with silver lamé. A black velvet skirt, a silver lamé blouse, and a black velvet coat trimmed with ermine makean afternoon outfit which may become too common; a black satin dress with good jewels and a fur coat is better. Many velvet dresses are of unusual colours, such as bols de rose, mulberry-red, bottle-green, and slate-grey; brown is a colour for soft woollens and silk moiré. The high neckline without a collar can be close to the throat, tied to a bow and ends, or left open. Loose upper-arm sleeves and tight mitten cuffs are as general as mitten-sleeves tight all the way down or shirt sleeves with little wrist-cuffs. The low shoulder line means a wide yoke cut in one with the sleeve, the full drapery of which begins where the yoke ends.While there are low-backed evening bodices, there are dresses with trains and high backs and long sleeves, and others with square neck lines. Molyneux and Mainbocher make dresses with a bare shoulder line. Molyneux trims the bodice with a ruche;BEAUTIFUL
BROWSHints On A Placid CountenanceWhy is it that so many fore-heads are more sallow than the rest of the complexion when by all the rules of the game they should be snowy white?It is largely because the forehead seldom receives the same care and through cleansing as the rest of the face.Very often it is the fear of greasing or disarranging the hair which makes us neglect the brow, but if a makeup band is worn, or a soft towel is tied round the head when the face is attended to the hair line can be safely exposed.A mild bleach such as elderflower water applied to the forehead every night for some time will soon whiten the skin, and a bleaching pack should be given once a week.A paste of buttermilk and bran makes a good one, or a teaspoonful of dried milk can be mixed with four teaspoonfuls of peroxide of hydrogen.

Wrinkle Habits

Forehead lines are more difficult to cure, and they are often to be seen even upon the brows of schoolgirls. Wrinkle habits are responsible, habits such as raising the eyebrows in surprise, or drawing them together in a frown.Wrinkle plasters worn while sewing or reading will soon discover these mannerisms which are generally quite unconscious, and will remind you, to keep a calm and placid countenance.These plasters can be bought in boxes of assorted sizes, or you can make your own of court plaster.
Ordinary sticking plaster will serve if you are careful to moisten it with methylated spirit afterwards to remove it.But best of all is a special liquid or cream to spread on the wrinkles which quickly effaces them.SHORT SKIRTSA word of warning: See that your skirts are not too short.
Eight inches from the ground is a good length if the frock is to be balanced by a large hat. And if you are short, and not too slim, don't wear a "cart-wheel" at all.
These hats are for the tall and slender.Mainbocher fixes his with bones.
Slim hips and slim slit hems, falling to long trains, usually mark evening dresses, but full hem lines and flounces are graceful.Bovril is a quick restorative, an invigorating beverage when you are tired or overworked.
Taken regularly, Bovril helps to build sound strength for both body and nerves, and an active power of resistance to infection.BOVRIL*THE HOUSE OF STYLES

Modern Effects In China

PATTERNS FOLLOW FASHIONS IN FABRICS

By "Janet"

Next to her linen, the Victorian woman especially prided herself on her china. Whenever I see a well-ordered china cupboard, I always get a mental picture of Mrs. Tulliver in "Mill on the Floss" lovingly handling her "chancey" decorated with the sprigs so fashionable in those days, and brought out only on great occasions.

But I can't imagine modern women fussing over teapots rolled in tissue paper and getting out the best tea cups when visitors are expected.

Everything is made for use, and it is a good sign that we like to have pretty things for every day, not just for high days and holidays.

Tea china to-day is sensible in the extreme. For example, one rarely sees those shallow cups which so soon let the tea get cold: the new ones are rather tall and narrow, with ring handles.

Teapots really "pour" without dripping all over the cloth, and have handles that give a good "purchase."

"Spring" Patterns

But one thing that strikes me is the way patterns are following fashions in fabrics and furniture. There are tea sets which echo the pattern of chintz curtains, stripes and checks are well to the fore for the autumn, and the liking for "spring" patterns is coming back.

If yours is one of those rooms with a real feminine atmosphere you will fall in love with a white tea set spotted with blue. The spots are too small to be called polka dots, and they are surprisingly dainty.

The bread plate belonging to this set has blue lines as a border, and it blossoms out into two funny little "ears" at right angles to each other in place of the more traditional handles. You can get a toast-rack and a jam dish in the same pattern, so the tea table is really complete.

Just as feminine, but a complete contrast, is some new china in a Syringa pattern. The blue flowers with copper-coloured leaves sweep across the cups both inside and out, and all the pieces are outlined with a blue border.

Modern rooms need china to match them, mostly rather plain and with bands of colour for decoration. The cups and plates in the new set are moulded in graduated bands, each outlined with colour. You can choose green, brown, or orange or ivory.

A slightly different pattern is mainly in a warm cream colour, which I find shows up so well on those gay-coloured linen cloths.

The bands here are round the edges of cups, saucers and plates and I picked out a combination of pink, grey and black on the cream ground as particularly pretty. Can't you imagine this in a sunny, modern room, all pinks and greys, on an old rose linen cloth?

A Fascinating Set

Then, if your curtains are checked, match up the tea table to them with a fascinating set which has a deep band of coloured checks round the saucers and tea cups. This is a new note in china, but is not expensive. I chose it for a kitchen-living room where most of the furniture was enamelled apple green.

Or perhaps you like a note of oddness about the tea table—a different pattern or colour in the jam jar and butter dish. Some little novel touch which inspires visitors to remark on it.

In this case you will like the ware made to resemble basket-work, and decorated with bunches of realistic fruit, one of this year's brightest ideas.

These pieces are bright and colourful, so use them with either plain china to brighten up the table, or with china that is boldly patterned and will stand up to them. They would put more delicate designs in the shade.

Dinner ware? After all the novelty of square plates and such-like, we are coming back to more rational ideas. The novelty in this year's design lies mainly in the vegetable dishes, which are mostly round and have fascinating plain knobs and scroll handles.

Some are made in the shape of deak blotters with flat lids, pretty to look at, and they take up little space on the dinner table.

"Oversize" Cups

Sets of breakfast cups have an innovation which will appeal to mere man—they are real, "oversize," holding about half a pint, and yet they manage to avoid looking clumsy.

And I must not forget to tell you about some new china I saw recently, rather like the old silver lustre brought up to date. It was a clear ivory colour and decorated with wide bands and handles of silver. It made up into most attractive coffee sets, which, complete with the pot, cost well under the pound, and could be had with a tray to match.

But, although it is in use every day, do treat your china, well. If you can spare a cupboard specially for it, have the hooks for cups fixed round the wall, not on the front of the shelves where the cups are likely to get knocked and broken.

GOLD TOE NAILS

Latest Craze Among Film Stars

Help! I can't stand it. The latest Hollywood fad is having gold on the toenails, says a correspondent. Not just gilded m'ing you—but gold. It happens this way.

A bookbinder fellow is having the fun of a lifetime—putting genuine gold-leaf toenails on the very famous.

They are of that permanent type gold which is applied on very expensive volumes with genuine gold leaf. Each little toehold is given an application of the gold leaf and then they are burnished. It's a very romantic effect, and it's being done so that the correct effect may be had with the new sandals.

Even Garbo has gone in for it. Her golden toes peep out from sandals whose straps consist of a few cords artfully crossed so as to hold the sole in place.

The sandals are very chic for evening wear with gold cords, but for the daytime, white is a favourite, since it best reveals the sun-burned foot and the golden toenails that are cinemaland's newest craze.

Norma Shearer's tiny feet also have golden nails these days. I understand Mary Pickford went through the process before she left for the east coast.

In fact, if you're among the elect of Hollywood at all, you have that flash of metal on the feet which is applied with the new process and which is on to stay for a while.

LONDON NOTES

Furs For The Autumn

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 2.

Every autumn certain furs gain or lose interest; new styles in shape and working are exhibited and designers who have practical ideas link their products with dress fashions. The more expensive furs, such as sable and mink, change least; by reason of their depth they never go out of fashion, though the lines of a collar or sleeve and the fit of the back and wrap may vary.

There is now a revival of seal-skin and seal-dyed musquash. Alaska seal is a most becoming and enduring skin, though its weight has sometimes been against it. Of recent years it has been found possible to make the skins lighter and more pliable, and seal this autumn are fairly light. Whenever there is much velvet in dress, seal-skin comes back. Seal-skin accordingly is being made up as bronze-brown and black-dyed coats with collars.

Grey Indian lamb is also a new fashion: it is made with a shawl collar, slightly fitting and with full sleeves tapering to the wrists, and more elaborately it becomes a cape sleeve bordered with grey dyed Arctic fox: it should look well over a frock of bottle-green, which is an autumn colour. Indian lamb of a rich burnished brown, to which ermine is also dyed, is another of the season's furs. With brown lamb coats are large cape collars of sable-dyed kolinsky brought to point at the back. Dyed ermine continues to be a fur for long coats and capes; its light weight makes it easy to wear, and it lasts well. Some of the coats of this fur are worked in perpendicular strands to give the fashionable straight line.

MONOCHROME FASHIONS DOOMED?

The discreet monochrome fashions seem to be doomed. The majority of the designs are multi-coloured, some reminding of kimono, others of a Hungarian peasant style. However, all exhibit an artistic tendency which give some of the models a plastic effect.

Almost without exception they resemble Greek vases, blossoms, or flowers. They all produce the one effect—they emphasise the womanly character, and are all that which we less than a year ago would have called old-fashioned.

Blue-Dyed Fox

American broadtail dyed to carbon-paper blue has been made into long coats trimmed with blue-dyed fox collar. Blue is not a fur colour, but these coats make a change. Short capes and hip length capes are also made of blue American broadtail, some in odd back-to-front styles and others pleated into a wide "horse-collar." For those who prefer a more usual colour there are American broadtail coats dyed a smoky-brown and trimmed with natural blue fox which is also a smoky brown. This shade is common for silks and woolsens.

There are no great alterations in fur styles. Cape collars on mink and sable coats can be worn up or down; shawl collars on the flatter lamb furs are also adaptable, and there are scarf and muffler collars; but nothing is very high, and most collars are pulled out at the back to make the hat comfortable. There are some seven-eighth length coats for those who like walking. Of Persian lamb, a heavy fur, there are seven-eighth length tailored coats, and this length is likely to be repeated in seal-skin and seal musquash. As furs become less heavy fur coats can be worn more often, and the shorter length (when the line is kept fairly straight) is useful. Coats of fur such as ermine, mink, and sable have deep armholes to allow them to be worn over coats and skirts or over trimmed evening gowns.

Fur capes for evening and day are made of all kinds of fur. There are silver fox wraps which come below the hips, ending in a det. point at the back, and there are kolinsky capes, in shoulder and hip lengths, for wearing over coat-frocks. Collars on capes stand away from the face. Capes of the smaller furs are often mounted a little distance apart on silk so as not to rub and to be all the lighter.

For The Well Dressed

HAT STYLES THAT ARE NEW

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 2.

Purple is undoubtedly a French colour favourite. It on the dark side and a rich velvet, purple is lovely in millinery, particularly when worn by fair girls or white-haired women.

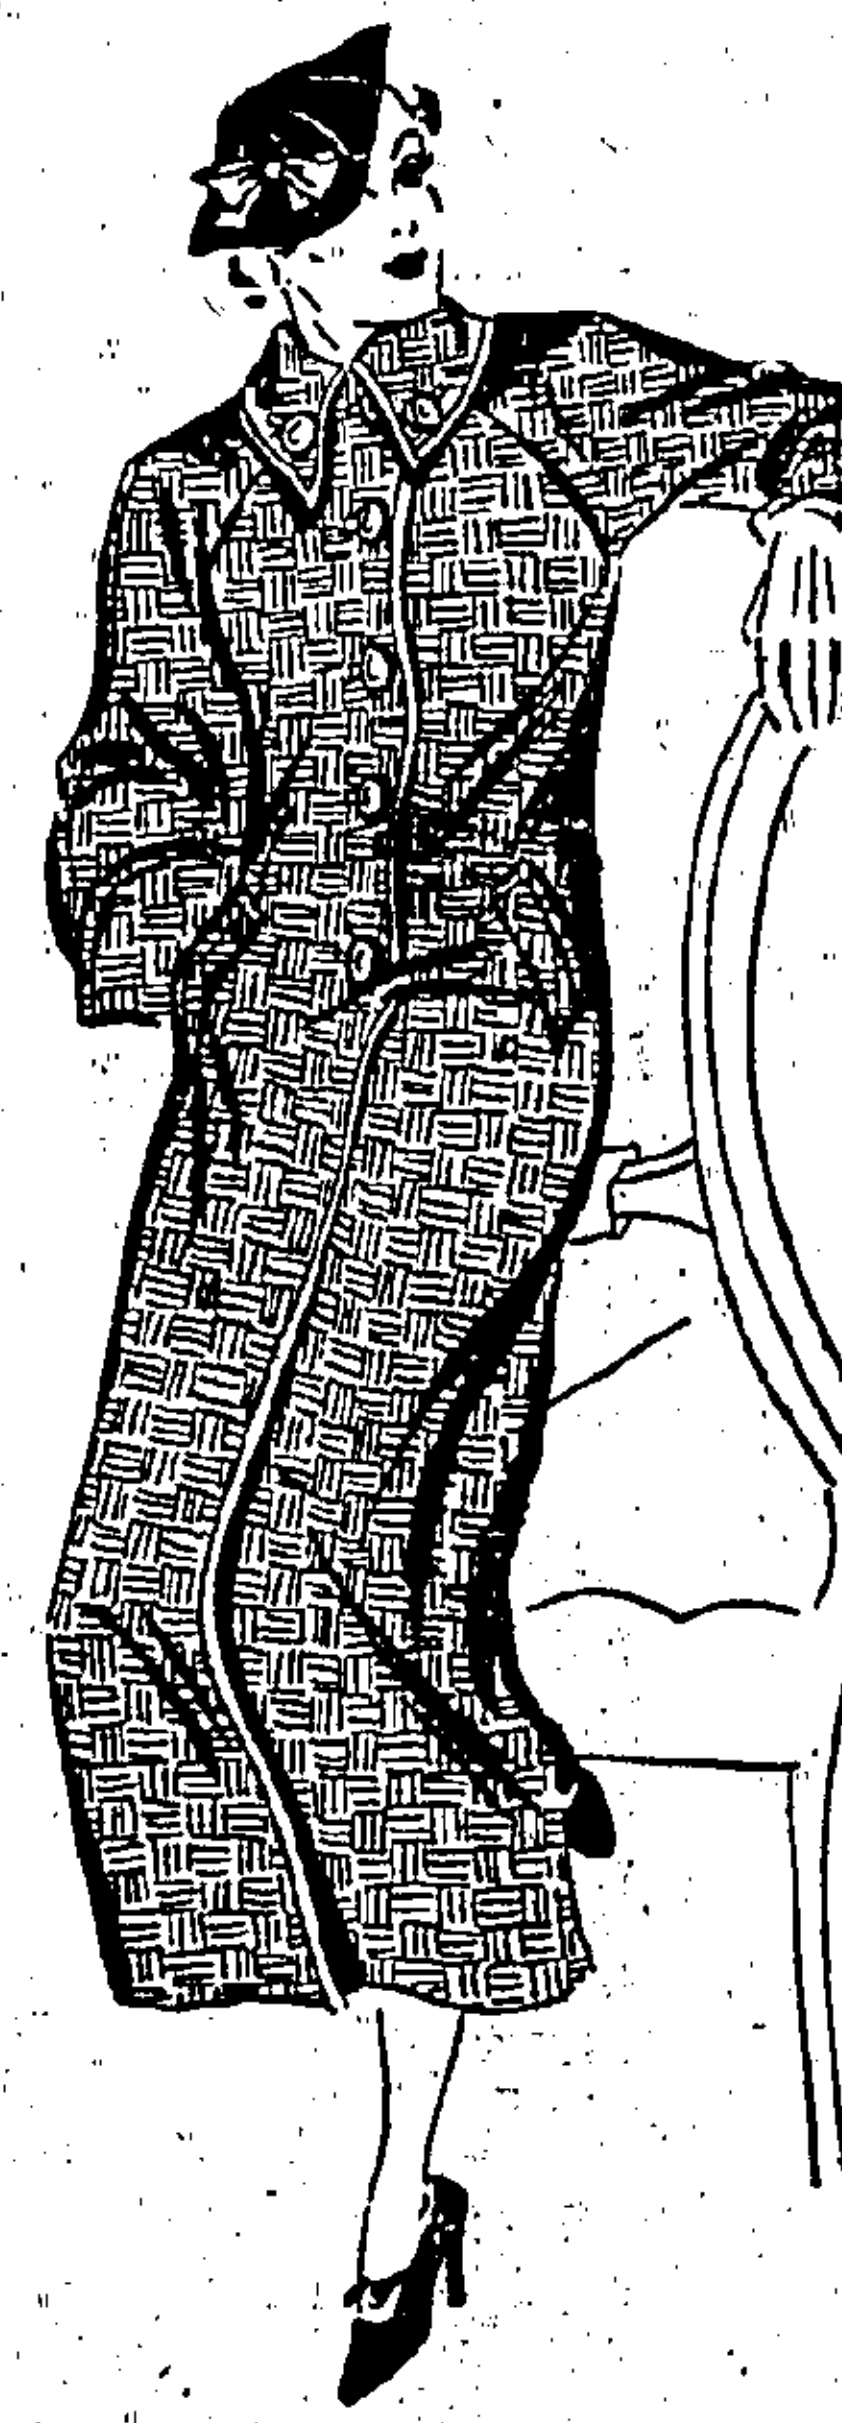

Not for years have there been so many fur-trimmed hats. Expensive skins are used to trim the felts and velvets. Both the tricorn and the admiral's hat in black or grey felt have fantastic brims made in finest matching broadtail.

Cossack Caps

The Cossack cap made of brown broadtail looks like being a sure winner. The high Cossack turban, so familiar a style half a century ago, has returned to fashion, but with a difference. First of all the fur is soft and light, and, secondly, it can be bent and pulled about in all directions. Our leading milliners tell me that few women will care for the really high-crowned hat: it is so ageing. Certain French houses are stressing height, but the idea is not too well received.

What a fascinating page from "Punch" or Leech's day is the pork-pie turban made entirely of greenish black coo's feathers—with an adorable cape of the same, lined black velvet and fastening with a black velvet bow at the side.

Another novelty is a toque and collar of green merle and felt. This is fashioned after an elongated toque.

FLUFFY AND FRILLY GILET

There should be no difficulty this year for every type of woman to find many necklines that will become her, for the popularity of the gilet has emphasised the importance of the neckline.

The gilet is not exactly a tunic, but comes under the same category. Actually, a gilet is a neckline attachment to a dress. Sometimes it is only a collar-plus, but more often it extends over the dress and its sash ties in a bow at the back. In this form it is like a blouse, but instead of being worn "under" it is worn "over." In this way it encroaches on the tunic, and sometimes, indeed, is worn at tunic length.

But it is to the gilet we owe the season's so varied neckline, or vice versa. And vary it must, either in simplicity or in elaboration—all fluffy and frilly and feminine—hence the gilet, or the tunic.

MASSAGING A THIN FACE

Should a thin face be massaged, or will it make it thinner? Massage is a two-way route to beauty. Correctly done, it acts both as a builder up and as a disperser of tissue.

The Collure Helps

All millinery is difficult to wear this season—but the collure can help, for curls give the required tilt at the back or side.

The felt tricornes are now much improved by the stiffened net veil. There is much black and white worn on the head and for matching scarf and gloves. Black cloth is trimmed with white ermine, and many dyed ermine toques are trimmed with velvet to tone.

Altogether it appears that millinery has taken on a more formal and expensive air, with, of course, the exception of sports hats, which retain a becoming and practical aspect.

The knitted and woven caps and berets offer a marvellous variety. It is always wise to choose a comfortable and nattering style for the country. The flatter form of Tam-o-Shanters are admirable for some faces, and the vast quantity of new woolly values can be as easy to wear as richer silks and velvets. Some small shapes are like a forage cap and are easier than the cone-like toques.

Up At Back

The brim turning up at the back is a somewhat hard style and I foresee its abrupt lines being softened as the season advances.

Quills, wings, arrows, tufts of colour and hat-pins are all pressed into the decorative service, even with trimmings and formalities. The modern trend is for simplicity and good style in hats.

SHELL "JEWELS"

The very latest novelty in the "jewellery" line is a brooch, which may be used also as a hat ornament, made of mother of pearl in the shape of an oyster shell. In the centre glistens a tiny pearl.

Other shells have been used as models for ornaments, too. A colourful and unusual choice would be a sea shell in lovely green shades.

THE CARE OF THE FEET

Faults of High-heeled Shoes

(Special Air Mail Service)

Edinburgh, Sept. 22.

The members of the Incorporated Society of Chiropodists, who are holding their autumn convention in Edinburgh yesterday attended the Royal Infirmary and heard two lectures on the care of the feet.

The first was by Professor Murray Lyon, whose subject was "Diabetes and the Need for Foot Care."

The second, by Professor John Fraser, M.C., dealt with "The Feet of the Child." The lecturer said they encountered in certain of the Anthropoid apes a foot structure which was extraordinary similar to that of the human foot, and there could be no doubt that there was a very strong argument in support of the fact that the human foot had arisen by certain evolutionary changes in the foot of those—should he say—ancient ancestors.

He showed how the heel had gradually descended to bear weight, and he wondered if ladies who used high-heeled shoes and thereby threw the weight forward on the front of the foot realised that in doing so they were mimicking a very ancient monkey. (Laughter.)

Praise for Moccasins

On the care of the feet, Professor Fraser spoke of the advantage of having stockings and shoes properly designed; the stocking should be like the moccasin of the primitive race. The tendency of the present day to use high-heeled shoes was a very great mistake.

The effect of the high heel was to place the powerful heel bone at a disadvantage and to transmit the weight of the body to the weak part of the foot.

If they would only adopt a heel which was scarcely a heel at all, large masses of their disabilities would disappear.

A DOCTOR ON NEW BISHOP OF CHINA HONAN

A Surgeon's China. By Albert Gervais. London: Hamish Hamilton. Pp. 303. 7s. 6d. net.

If every theorist on China could spend several thoughtful years in Szechuan as a lay doctor before delivering himself of opinions the balance between the optimists and the pessimists would be better kept. Dr. Gervais's book is frank, sympathetic, humorous, and true to life. He brings back even the smells of Chengtu, the sweet and the not so sweet, most vividly. His whole story will repay reading. But his conclusions are especially interesting—and so true. The white man who lives in the interior of China is gradually charmed and enchanted by the ancient people round him, but while he tends to grow away from conceptions familiar in the West he will not claim to have "solved the problem of the Asiatic soul." He may penetrate some way, but an invisible barrier remains and he is in danger of erecting another between himself and his own race.

Szechuan is behind the coastal provinces in feeling the effect of the modern thought, but even so Dr. Gervais produces good reasons for his conclusion that "the sorrowful voices of old China will still, for a long time to come, cover the noise of tramways and gramophones." An advance or change is taking place, but his story gives some idea of the long way there is yet to travel.

The General Synod of the Church of England in Canada, at its meeting held in Montreal on September 15, gave formal approval to the resolution that the Diocese of Honan should be in a position to elect its own Bishop and recommended that the Synod of the Diocese should entrust the election to the House of Bishops of the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui.

The full resolution reads: 1. That the General Synod of the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui having unanimously passed a resolution expressing the opinion that the Diocese of Honan would be in a position to elect its own Bishop (or entrust such election to the House of Bishops) in accordance with the Canons of the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui, This General Synod of the Church of England in Canada concurs in this resolution and agrees that the Diocese of Honan should proceed to act in this matter according to the Canons of their Church, under the advice of their metropolitan authorities.

2. Further, that this General Synod recommends to the Synod of the Diocese of Honan that the election should be entrusted to the House of Bishops of the Chung Hua Sheng Kung Hui. 3. And further, that such Bishops as may be elected whether of Chinese or Canadian nationality should be required to render allegiance only to the metropolitan authority of the Church in China.

"THE MAN WHO PLAYED GOD"

At The Alhambra

Playing before a king, as George Arliss does in "The Man Who Played God," now at the Alhambra Theatre, is not a new experience for this actor. Arliss has played stage roles with King George V of England in the audience and he needed no expert to advise him on the formalities and general atmosphere of such a scene.

Mr. Arliss played few of his best known roles in England. It is only since his talking pictures have been shown in his homeland that the name of Arliss has become famous there as in America. However, he did play "The Green Goddess" for an entire year in London and King George was the most famous of many distinguished personages in his audience.

Arliss knows what tension, excitement and drama is involved in such a event. He has profited by this experience in planning the "king" sequence of "The Man Who Played God."

CATHERINE THE GREAT

At The King's

Films which take their story and their background from history have not always been popular with the picture-going public. But since "The Private Life of Henry VIII," proved that history could be not only palatable but tremendously enjoyable, the public has clamoured for more.

Now comes another epic picture—"Catherine the Great," which, following its tremendous success in London, is to have a special presentation at the King's Theatre on Saturday. "Catherine the Great" is a picture of 18th century Russia under the Czars and has been produced with a close regard to historical accuracy, and an even closer regard to entertainment values.

"Catherine the Great" has some of the world's finest actors and actresses, headed by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Elizabeth Bergner. Flora Robson plays the dominating Empress Elizabeth, who is busy arranging the lives of her nephew Peter, and his wife, without the smallest regard for their personal feelings and wishes. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has the most interesting part of his career as the unbalanced young Archduke Peter, afterwards the Czar Peter III. Married, by the Empress's wish, to an obscure German Princess—Catherine of Anhalt-Zerbst—he neglects her for other women from the moment of their marriage.

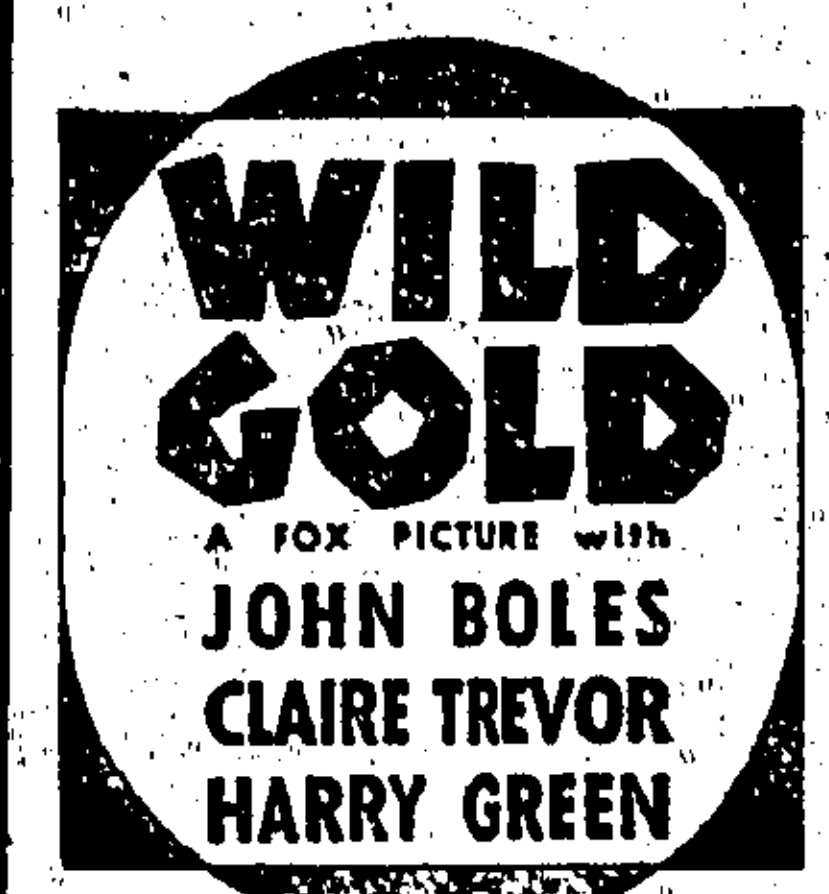

Catherine, (played by Elizabeth Bergner), invents a regiment of imaginary lovers in order to arouse his jealousy. This she is successful in doing, and after some scenes of great dramatic intensity, they are temporarily reconciled. Upon the death of the Empress, which he has for some time been eagerly anticipating, Peter becomes Czar. His cruel and vicious temperament soon makes the people grow restive. After a brief reign of six months, Catherine, mindful of the Empress's dying wish that she protect the people's interests, arranges his banishment to a fortress with instructions that he be well cared for. She assumes the reins of government.

News of Peter's death reaches Catherine at the pinnacle of her triumph. In a scene which taxes even Miss Bergner's great emotional powers, she realises that she would sooner have him beside her than be acclaimed by the cheering multitude as "Catherine the Great."

Elizabeth Bergner, who previously has been seen only in German films, is small, vital and magnetic, with enormous brown eyes and strangely mobile lips.

"No More Women"

WITH EDMUND DOWE
VICTOR McLAGLEN

She is a creature of ever-changing moods, and is married to Dr. Paul Caxner, who directed her in "Catherine the Great" as in all her Continental successes.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., rises to unparalleled heights in his characterization of the Czar, and this should prove to be the greatest part in his career. Flora Robson in her first important screen part is a definite "find." She created a sensation on the stage in "All God's Chillun," with Paul Robeson. Dorothy Hale as the Countess Olga is excellent, and Joan Gardner, plays the part of Kathuska, a Russian maid at the Palace.

Other important players in the cast are Sir Gerald du Maurier, Irene Vanbrugh, Diana Napier, Griffith Jones, Gibb McLaughlin and Clifford Heatherley.

FRONTIER MARSHAL
with George O'Brien

"FRONTIER MARSHAL"

Coming To The Oriental

George O'Brien, long known for his Western characterizations, comes to the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in Fox Film's latest release, "Frontier Marshal." Tombstone, Arizona, known in the days of the old West as a roaring, politically corrupt mining town where lawlessness and death were the order of the day, forms the background of this Western epic.

O'Brien is cast as a frontier marshal who, because of the girl he loves, remains in Tombstone to avenge her father's killer, and at the same time bring peace and order to this town that knew no law. O'Brien finds that he is faced with a difficult task for he discovers that the Mayor of the town is in alliance with the outlaws that have given Tombstone its disreputable name. How O'Brien manages to overcome these difficulties and capture the murderer of the girl's father, is reported to bring the film to a dramatic conclusion.

TROUBLE WITH THE "SCHNOZZLE"

Jimmie Durante feels the pangs of frustration! He's non-plussed! He's boiled up!

At least, he was for a few moments during the filming of a scene he was making with Lupe Velez, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Rambeau and Robert Armstrong in "Palooka," the comedy at the King's Theatre.

It seems the old "schnozle" wasn't getting the prominence it deserved, and Director Benjamin Stoloff halted operations in the middle of the scene and demanded more make-up and higher lighting on Jimmie's nose.

So there was nothing to do but take time out while make-up men went to work on the famous proboscis.

"It's sacrilege! It's mutiny!" moaned Durante.

"For de foist time in my career dey insists on gildin' de film!"

Max Baer (screen star and contender for the heavyweight championship), Jimmie's guest on the set, and Irving Berlin (publisher of the song numbers in this release who was also watching the scene), consoled Jimmie by assuring him that the "schnozle" was supreme as ever and no doubt the director and cameraman were feeling a little hypercritical that day.

STAMBOUL QUEST

Tale of International Intrigues

"Stamboul Quest" the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, opening on Sunday at the Queen's Theatre, brings to the screen for the first time a new team of film lovers. They are Myrna Loy and George Brent, who appear in their first picture together—Miss Loy as the famous German spy, Annemarie Lesser, and Brent as the reckless, adventurous American, Douglas Beall, who falls in love with her.

The picture is based upon an original story by Leo Birinski and throws a new light upon the World War, revealing the involved intrigue of international espionage as practised by the Central Powers—and of the system of unleashing one spy to catch another.

The story has its beginning in war-ravaged Berlin and carries the action of the exciting drama to Turkey, where Miss Loy, as a German spy masquerading as a British agent, is sent to trap traitorous Ali Bey, suspected of being a traitor to the Central Powers.

Her newest role presents Miss Loy as a full-fledged star. Where in former films she has invariably appeared as a supporting player, in "Stamboul Quest" Miss Loy is really the entire story and carries the major part of the plot.

Brent, also is said to give the finest performance of his brief screen career as the impetuous lover who trails his spy-sweetheart to Stamboul and braves grave dangers to win her love.

Though the supporting cast is small, it carries several of the finest characters in pictures. C. Henry Gordon enacts the role of Ali Bey, Turkish chief of staff suspected of being a traitor. Lionell Atwill, veteran of stage and screen, and who always can be depended upon for a fine performance, appears as Herr Von Sturm, chief of the German counter espionage system, who sends Annemarie to Stamboul on the dangerous errand.

Settings for the film were carefully chosen after many weeks of research and as the story unfolds it reveals colourful settings in the headquarters of the German espionage department, in various pleasure palaces of Germany's wartime capital and of the mysterious haunts of near-east Stamboul.

Produced by Bernard Hyman, the cast also includes Judith Vogt as Mata Hari; Lea Carroll as the treacherous spy Kruger; Christian Rub as Dr. Leder.

AT THE QUEEN'S

Cockney Wit

Aspirants to film fame have often wondered what they would do if they were suddenly taken from their normal occupation to a film studio to become the leading player in a picture.

"Britannia of Billingsgate," the Gaumont-British picture showing at the Queen's Theatre, has just such a story. In this case the person who rockets to fame and fortune is a woman who sells fish and chips in the Billingsgate market.

Violet Loraine returns after a lengthy absence from the world of entertainment to make her talkie debut, and plays the role of the fish and chip vendor with all that easy assurance and superb artistry that made her famous on the stage.

With her is Gordon Harker as a fish market porter, who demonstrates his special flair for Cockney character humour. His Billingsgate expressions, his rhyming slang, and his attempt to be a gentleman when fortune comes his way, are facets of a characterization that sparkles with its reality.

From start to finish the film is a riot of laughter which will be happily received by audiences everywhere.

TEA PARTY TO I. G. P.

Indian Police Praised

A tea party was given by the Indian members of the Hong Kong Police Force at Lane Crawford's Restaurant yesterday in honour of the Hon. Mr. A. A. C. Wolfe, Inspector General of Police who is leaving for home on October 23, on retirement.

There was a large gathering present including Hon. Mr. S. W. T'o, Mr. J. A. Fraser, Mr. T. H. King, Mr. H. K. Holmes, Mr. F. W. Franks, Mr. F. A. Hopkins, Mr. D. Burlingham, Mr. L. H. Calthrop, Mr. J. E. V. Booth, Mr. T. Murphy, Mr. P. Grant, Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen and Mr. W. Shannan.

Inspector Afzal Ahmed, acting chief of the Indian Police, in extending a welcome to the Hon. Mr. Wolfe and the guests, said that Mr. Wolfe had been very kind to the Indian members of the police force and was largely responsible in bringing the Indian Police up to its present strength. The Indian Police was a small unit before 1920, he said, but after Mr. Wolfe had taken over the command, it had risen to the number of 850. Mr. Wolfe had always shown consideration and sympathetic treatment towards the Indian members of the Force and was instrumental in creating the two posts of Assistant Superintendents of Police in the Indian contingent. He was sorry that Mr. Wolfe was leaving and on behalf of the Indian Police he wished him "bon voyage" and a happy retirement.

Mr. Wolfe

Replying, Mr. Wolfe said that he was leaving Hong Kong with feelings of the greatest regret and among these feelings of regret not the least was the parting with members of the Indian Police and the Indian community with whom he had been for so many years in contact. He was sorry that neither of the two representatives of the Indian Police were present as he had known them ever since he came to Hong Kong. He referred to the late Khan Sahib Nawab Khan and Sirdar Sahib Mohinder Singh. He first met them out in the New Territories in 1903 when he first learned to appreciate what the Indian section of the Police Force meant to the Hong Kong Police as a whole. He had learned to appreciate them more fully since he took over the command of the Force in 1918. With the bulwark like the Indian police on his back he had been able to meet troubles when they came. He knew he had a loyal, efficient and devoted contingent behind him and he also knew that in face of difficulties and troubles he had nothing to fear. (Applause).

Continuing, Mr. Wolfe said "If I have in any way improved the status and lot of the Indian Police I am only too glad that I have done so because I consider that they fully deserved it. (Applause). It has been somewhat disappointing to find that many promising members of the Indian contingent, for reasons best known to themselves, leave the Police rather than to remain in it and unfortunately the Police Force is a recruiting ground for practically every department which employed Indians. This has meant a drain on our resources, particularly among those who have shown promise in the Police Force itself. I do not blame them but I feel that we must have some counter attack to keep efficient and useful men within the Police Force and not let them drift away. I hope that the newly created posts of probationer sub-inspectors will meet a very urgent need."

Mr. Wolfe concluded by wishing those present good-bye, and the best of luck in the future.

FAREWELL PARADE

Earlier in the day, the Hon. Mr. Wolfe inspected members of his force in a farewell parade held at the compound of the Central Police Station.

Over 250 men, drawn from every unit of the force, were present, and they were made up of the following: the Welhaiwei contingent (under the charge of Mr. D. Burlingham), the European Contingent (A.S.P. Calthrop), Indian (A.S.P. Bidmead), Cantonese (A.S.P. Grant), Emergency Unit (Chief Inspector Marks), Anti-Piracy Guard (Sub-Inspector Shepherd), Police Reserves (Mr. T'o Chun On) and the following Inspectors J. Brennan, J. McLellan, F. W. Shattain, F. Hoare, G. A. Stimson, S. Logan, R. R. McEwen, J. C. Fender, A. V. Baker, and A. T. Sabey.

The company put up a smart display, and after the inspection,

WEDDING

Marrett-Coleman

A charming wedding took place at the St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon yesterday when Mrs. Edna Joyce Coleman, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Munford of St. Leonards, Sussex, became the wife of Mr. William Marrett of H.M.S. Oswald. The Rev. J. R. Higgs officiated.

The bride who was given away by Mr. Arthur Andrews was dressed in a creation of shell pink net with a white picture hat. She carried a bouquet of pink and white Honolululu creeper.

She was attended by Mrs. A. Andrews as Matron of Honour, who was dressed in an old Rose George gown and carried a bouquet of mixed African daisies.

Mr. G. Morris was the best man.

Following the ceremony, a reception, which was largely attended, was held in the Church Hall, the happy couple leaving later for their honeymoon which is being spent at Repulse Bay.

The bride's going-away dress was a green jade ensemble with a beige hat and accessories to match.

UNITED STATES WARNING

On Raising Tariff Barriers

Washington, Oct. 17.

Mr. Cordell Hull, United States Secretary of State, and Mr. William Phillips, Under-Secretary of State have published a statement warning certain unnamed nations that indulgence in the "indefensible practice" of raising tariff barriers just before entering international negotiations for lowering them, thereby seeking a bargaining advantage, would imperil any negotiations with the United States.

It is indicated in other quarters that many foreign nations are more or less banded together in a series of trade pacts to the exclusion and detriment of the United States.

Mr. Hull pledged that the United States would not indulge in such tariff-raising practices. He added that they would seek to negotiate with nations which shared the United States opposition to such practices.—Reuter.

the Hon. Mr. Wolfe, addressed them as follows:

"After 30 years connection with the Hong Kong Police I have no hesitation in saying that throughout these years it has maintained its reputation for efficiency, loyalty, and devotion to duty in good and bad times and has carried out its ever increasing functions with strict impartiality, and that sense of fair play which is so essential in any Colonial force. I have no doubt that this standard will be maintained in the future as in the past under all conditions."

Mr. Wolfe then went on to recall the difficult times the Force had gone through, and after paying eulogistic tributes to his men, concluded by saying, "It is with a heavy heart I say farewell to you all. I thank you one and all for your loyalty to the Government and to me, for the success which has attended your joint efforts to maintain the King's peace in Hong Kong during my tenure of Office, and I not only trust, but believe, that you will give to my successor whose Police experience far exceeds mine, that loyalty and good service which it has been my good fortune to receive in such full measure throughout what I believe to be the longest period in the annals of the H.K.P. during which any one Head has presided over its destinies."

WOMAN'S DEATH

Sequel To Street Fight

A fight between several Chinese women and Chinese males over the right to fill their pails with water from a public fountain in Pitt Street, and which eventually resulted in the death of a Chinese woman who either threw herself or jumped from a third floor window, formed the subject of an inquiry into the circumstances surrounding the death of a young married woman, Tseung Sam, who died at the Kowloon Hospital on the night of September 23 from multiple injuries.

The jury empanelled comprised Mr. Guy Hatley (foreman) Mr. William James Geall and Mr. Auguste Brusset.

Sub-Inspector Carey represented the Police.

Dr. P.F.S. Court said he was Medical Officer of the Kowloon Hospital.

On the afternoon of September 23 a young Chinese woman called Tseung Sam was admitted and examined by him. She has wounds both externally and internally.

Death was due to shock and haemorrhage following fractures of the legs, both heels and the pelvis.

Dr. Court said that the injuries strongly suggest that the deceased had landed on her heels after falling from some considerable height.

On the same day, September 23, a Chinese male aged about 15 and named Chow Fung was admitted to the hospital conscious. He had a small bruise on the outer edge of the right shoulder blade, a scratch on the hair margin above the left temple and there was a tender spot on the right side of the head which was also swollen. The boy had contracted some fever and was detained for seven days, being discharged on September 30.

Police Evidence

Inspector J. Dorling said that at 9 o'clock on the morning of September 23, in consequence of a telephone message he proceeded to Tung On Street where he found a Chinese female who was later identified as Tseung Sam, lying on the pavement outside No. 20. She had compound fractures of both legs near the ankles and appeared to be in a bad way.

Witness saw the boy Chow Fung, lying on the opposite side of the road being nursed by an elderly man. He was unable to speak. Ten minutes later the female and the boy were sent to the Kowloon Hospital.

While at the hospital Inspector Dorling was able to get the deceased to give her name, her native village and her age before she lapsed into unconsciousness from which she did not awaken.

Lam Kit, married woman residing at No. 24 Tung On Street said she knew the deceased and had been with her and another woman on September 23 when they went to draw water from the Public fountain.

The Fight

Witness describing the scene that took place said the deceased was the first on the scene and the boy Chow Fung arrived soon after. The boy pushed her fall away and they had a quarrel. During the quarrel the boy damaged one of the deceased's pail and he also attacked witness, hitting her with a pole. Witness retaliated. During her own quarrel she saw the deceased being chased up the stairs of No. 20 Tung On Street but did not see her come down again.

Witness in answer to the foreman of the jury said she did not know the name of the man who had chased the deceased and would not recognise him again if she saw him.

Cheung Shing, another woman living at No. 18, gave corroborative evidence and when Inspector Carey paraded several men in front of her in court, identified one, Wong Shing, as being the man who had chased the deceased up the stairs.

The hearing was adjourned.

"NESSIE" SEEN AGAIN

By Man And Woman At Fort Augustus

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Oct. 2.

After a lapse of about three weeks, the Loch Ness "monster" was seen on two occasions at the week-end. Both appearances are reported from Fort Augustus, and in each case the creature was observed at the mouth of the river Olch.

Miss Chisholm, who owns a laundry in the village, was crossing the Olch Bridge about 7 a.m. when she saw a huge body in the form of three rumps swim gently in from the loch, and, in her own words, "prowl about as if in search of food." She said—"I had a wonderful view of the object when it turned and headed out to the loch. It made a wave just like a steamer's."

The body, she thought, was about 10 feet long.

The other witness, Mr. James Cameron, estate worker, Lochness Cottage, stated that on Saturday he saw from the same spot, a very large, dark-coloured object cut across the river mouth and dis-

MORE RIGOROUS SUPERVISION

Foreign Emigrants In Czechoslovakia

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Prague, Oct. 17.

One of the after effects in the Marseilles outrage will be more rigorous supervision of foreign emigrants living in Czechoslovakia, according to the Agrarian organ "Seneer" on Wednesday. The paper states that after having closely scrutinized the records of all emigrants from the Balkan countries, the Czech police authorities are now turning their attention to the German and Austrian refugees of whom 3,800 are living in Prague alone and who are alleged to be carrying out vicious propaganda against the Governments of their native countries.

In conclusion, the paper demands that the emigrants should be strictly forbidden to carry on political propaganda and other activities calculated to disturb the country's good relations with her neighboring States.—Transocean Kuo Min.

NO DANGER OF WAR

General Smuts Optimistic

London, Oct. 17.

General Smuts, who was to-day installed as Rector of St. Andrew's University, in the course of his address stated that he did not agree with the view that the world was on the verge of another Great War.

The issue round which the greatest battle of this, and the coming generation would be fought if the cause of civilisation was to be saved, was the issue of freedom.

He added—"In the events of the times I see much ground for anxiety, but none for real pessimism. Human nature is not so one-sided or ill-balanced that we need look on our civilisation as doomed. In spite of scaremongers and of the present lamentable failure of disarmament, in spite of the vogue of silly drilling and strutting about in uniform and shirts of various colours, I do not find the real war temper anywhere."

Mr. Stanley Baldwin, as Chancellor of the University, presided at General Smuts' installation.—British Wireless.

RELIEFS FOR CHINA

Inniskilling Fusiliers For Shanghai

(Special Air Mail Service)
London, Oct. 2.

The transport Dorsetshire leaves Southampton to-morrow with the 1st Battalion, The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, for Shanghai on transfer from the 3rd Infantry Brigade at Bordon. The unit will relieve the 2nd Battalion, The Worcestershire Regiment, which is to take up the Peking and Tientsin duties, this being the first of the normal season's reliefs on the China Station. The transport will take out the families of the latter battalion, who have been at home since the unit left Malta for China. Drafts are also being taken for Egypt, the Sudan, and Far East, including one to join the 2nd Battalion, The Sherwood Foresters, on its arrival at Port Sudan on October 18 for Khartoum and Cyprus duty. The Dorsetshire's voyage is the first of the season to the Far East, and in addition to carrying out the local reliefs of details will move five battalions before returning to Southampton on January 15 with the 1st Battalion, The Royal Berkshire Regiment, from Khartoum.

their own or other people's fields. Only a small minority can read. "All of them have imaginations of a liveliness to which there is hardly anything comparable in the Western world. The long, hot nights of the East are little conducive to sleep, but afford, under dense foliage and mango trees, infinite opportunity for social gatherings and for talk.

The Indian political agitator has taken advantage of this fact. Something has been done by the Government of India since 1911, by means of news agency and other enterprise, to counter some of the grosser forms of resultant subversive activity so far as this has been possible through the written word. But the problem of doing the same by the spoken language has not hitherto been solved. The multitudinous nature of the tongues and dialects used in India makes the radio-caster's task there almost uniquely difficult. Nevertheless, a great field of opportunity lies open. Lord Willingdon, in approaching it from the side of entertainment, is taking a road well calculated to succeed. His new radio station at Delhi is only a beginning. But it initiates an experiment of vast possibility not only in India, but wherever corresponding social conditions prevail.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

(BY "NO QUARTER")

The training of CELLULOSE, Dr. Axel Aufgang's racing candidate is proceeding apace, and the colt looks splendid. On Monday he did an impressive gallop from Causeway Bay to North Point, and apart from an involuntary hiccup when passing Murray Barracks, he showed no signs of distress.

"I had not originally planned to go so far," said the Doctor afterwards, "but circumstances over which I had practically no control forced me to proceed further than I had intended."

I asked the Doctor whether it was not, perhaps, rather an unusual practice to gallop Cellulose on the hard roads.

"Unusual!" cried he "Unusual he tried! Its finest training in the world for him. If the course is hard for the race he'll be used to it; if it's soft, why then Cellulose will be so delighted that he will 'un-twice as fast as usual out of sheer pleasure and gratitude.'"

I cannot say that I believe this.

I HAVE MY DOUBTS

Dr. Aufgang's training is, I fear not nearly so advanced as that of his prospective mount. You will remember that he proposed to take lessons for $50 from Mr. "Shifty" Loyne, but instead of getting down to it like a man, he wastes his own and his teacher's time by the wildest and most far fetched scientific theories about equitation. He persists in facing the tail of the horse, which he says reminds him of his sister, and steers by means of a driving mirror.

His latest idiotic prank is a combined Saddle and bridle. There is nothing in the horse's mouth except an induction coil, and the horse is steered by sparks generated by a battery strapped under the Saddle.

What nonsense! I am beginning to have my doubts if Dr. Aufgang really knows as much about horses as he pretends to.

PINK RHYMES FOR PALE PEOPLE

An Acknowledgement
Oh Saddlecanon, my head is bowed,
And all abased is my untimely pride.
Never again will I proclaim aloud
The mysteries of how and what to ride.
Yet though my equitation is to blame,
I have a feeling that it might be worse
Suppose my horse were ever half so lame
As the appalling scansion of your verse.

JAPAN'S PLAN RESENTED

Control Over Police In Manchukuo

Dairen October 18. All the three Bureau directors of the Government of Kwantung and highest officials under General Hsishikari were bombarded in the dispute between the Army and the Police by the resigning action which follows the approval by the Cabinet of the proposal of the Officer Commanding the Japanese Gendarmerie of the so-called Manchukuo that he should concurrently be in command of the Japanese Police.

POIGNANT TRIBUTES BY THE NATION

Royalty And Statesmen Pay Respects

Members of Royalty and delegates from many countries, national leaders of Europe, naval and military chiefs, members of the clergy, and peasants from all parts of the country representing many nationalities and others paid their last tributes at the funeral of King Alexander, the ruler of Yugoslavia.

The late King's popularity among his subjects received tangible expression in the reverent scenes at the capital since the body was brought from France and the profusion of wreaths which came even from the smallest hamlets in the land.

Belgrade, Oct. 18. Masses of visitors are overflowing the city now and it is estimated that over 150,000 are here, peasants from all parts of the Kingdom, Montenegrins, Croats, Dalmatians, Bosnians and Turks presenting a motley array in their national costumes and contrasting strangely to the black draped streets.

The arrival of Royal personages, official deputation of 25 countries, and other distinguished guests followed each other thick and fast.

An airplane conveying Chancellor Hitler's special military envoy, General Goering, alighted at the Belgrade airport on Wednesday afternoon, the Prussian Premier being greeted by the Minister of Commerce, Demotrovitch, and Commander of the Yugoslav Air Force, General Nedrich, the German envoy extraordinary of von Keller and the German minister von Heeren in the company of whom General Goering then proceeded by motor boat to Belgrade where a marine guard was drawn up in his honour and the war Minister, Milovanovitch welcomed him on behalf of the Yugoslavian army.

Important guests who had previously arrived are Prince Cyril of Bulgaria, King Carol of Roumania, accompanied by Titulescu, Prince George and his fiancée Princess Marina, representing the King of England, Prince Spoltia, nephew of the Italian King, and the French President, Lebrun, accompanied by three ministers, while the deputation from the city of Marseilles led by the Burgomaster, Ribaud had already arrived on Tuesday. All deputations and distinguished personages were met in the name of the Council Regents by guards of honour who conducted them to quarters reserved for them, Lebrun being given apartments in the Royal Palace.

In the old Royal Palace where the dead King is lying in state, the piles of wreaths grow steadily higher no less than 2,000 having been deposited by Wednesday evening. Sumptuous wreaths from abroad to the simplest bouquets of wild flowers from smallest hamlets in the land are among them, many wreaths being of thorns as a symbol of the tragic path trodden by the dead ruler.

Up till Wednesday evening, 300,000 people had filed past their dead sovereign while at the head post office over 30,000 telegrams of condolence were received.—Transocean Kuo Min.

defence forces, the chief of the army staff, Naditch, carried the crown, Admiral Priza the sceptre and other generals bore the banner and dagger. The Royal coffin was draped with black velvet and the national flag. On the coffin itself were the cap, sash, gloves and sword of the late King.

Members of the Royal family went on foot, first King Peter II with his mother, Queen Marie, then the rest of the family and then President Lebrun, King Carol of Roumania, representatives of foreign countries, princes and the German delegation headed by Goering, followed by the three members of the Regency Council, the Yugoslavian Premier, ministers, deputies and senators.—Transocean Kuo Min.

TENSE MOMENT

The Boy King And His Mother

Belgrade, Oct. 18. With bells tolling, guns booming and aeroplanes roaring overhead, the funeral service for the late King Alexander was held at the Cathedral, after which the procession progressed slowly through two miles of carefully policed streets.

The Cathedral service was of a most simple nature but impressive. The building was draped with black and massed choirs sang magnificent dirges, members of the Orthodox Church with the congregation in splendid uniforms of all kinds and a little group of the Royal family kneeling near the coffin.

An extremely moving moment arrived when the soldiers and King's Guard entered to remove the coffin, while King Peter sat at the throne with his legs dangling and his face pale as he watched first the coffin and then his mother's tear-worn face near him.

King Carol spontaneously stood on guard over the coffin with drawn sword during the whole of the service.

AGED PATRIARCH'S TRIBUTE
An aged patriarch with tears in his voice paid a last tribute to the work of King Alexander. Then the young King and widowed Queen and a distinguished company including President Lebrun, the Duke of Kent, Premier Goering and foreign representatives followed the gun carriage on the last journey through the streets while French, Czechoslovakian, Roumanian and Yugoslavian aeroplanes dipped in salute.

The coffin entrained to Mladetz novatz from which travel will be by car to Topola where burial will take place in the crypt of King Alexander's ancestors.—Reuter.

GEN. GOERING'S MISSION

Talk With Prince Paul

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, October 18, 4.30 p.m.)

Berlin, October 18. Further details on General Goering's mission as the German Army's special plenipotentiary at King Alexander's funeral and his one-hour talk with Prince Paul are furnished this morning by the "Deutsche Nachrichten" from the Yugoslav capital.

At the invitation of the speaker of Parliament, General Goering proceeded to Skupshchina where he was enthusiastically welcomed. The speaker offered him the seat of honour at the conference table. General Goering in the capacity of Speaker of the German Reichstag conveyed the German Parliament's heartfelt sympathy at the irreparable loss which Yugoslavia had sustained. General Goering emphasised the good relations existing between the two countries, pointing in particular to the commercial treaty which forms the basis for further extension of these relations. The Speaker of Parliament, Dr. Karamand, thanked Goering for his kind words. A deputy, a Bosnian farmer, in national costume sprang to his feet and spontaneously cheered Goering and New Germany and all those present enthusiastically joined in the cheers. Goering thereupon followed the invitation of Prince Paul with whom he had one hour's talk at Dedinje Castle. The utmost cordiality marked the conversations. Goering conveyed to Prince Paul the German Army's and the nation's heartfelt sympathy in Yugoslavia's bereavement.

PRINCE PAUL THANKS
Prince Paul expressed his thanks for the German Government's courtesy in despatching Goering. In the course of their conversation, it was stressed that on both sides there existed a keen desire to further intensify the good relations between Germany and Yugoslavia.

According to the "Berliner Tagblatt," General Goering told Yugoslavian members of the Press last night that Germany would not permit Macedonian or other terrorists to choose the Fatherland as their abode. He gave tribute to the late King Alexander as a strong guardian of the peace. General Goering further told Mr. Ward Price, of the "Daily Mail," that he had been warned that his old friend, Dimitroff, of the Reichstag, was fame, is harbouring evil designs against him while he was in Belgrade.—Transocean Kuo Min.

Lecturing at the Cornhill Club, Mr. Leonard Reid, City Editor of the "Daily Telegraph," expressed the opinion that after the elections President Roosevelt will find himself sufficiently strong to pursue vigorously a rapprochement with a prime finance enterprise, the more so as the President has already fulfilled the popular demand for fearless reform and abuses of the country's financial system.

Mr. Reid did not rule out the possibility in the comparatively near future of fresh overtures from Washington for reestablishment of currencies and emphasised the value accruing to the rest of the world from such a move and the extent to which the return of prosperity in the United States will be reflected in other countries.—Reuter.

LAST SCENES

Simple Funeral Ceremony

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, October 18, 7.30 p.m.)

Belgrade, Oct. 18. All Yugoslavia was on Thursday overshadowed by the sense of the irreparable national loss which was intensified at the moment when the dead King was carried to his last resting place to the family mausoleum in Oplenac in the heart of Serbia. The funeral rites were simple, the purpose being to keep in harmony with the character of the soldier-king whose pride was self-discipline and obedience to duty, his whole life being one of active service to his beloved country.

The occasion was very solemn as the Yugoslavian people mourns the loss not only of their King but a great man whose life was a constant fight for safety, peace and progress. During the night which was of unusual blackness, rain fell in torrents, only ceasing in the early morning. Nevertheless the patient crowds wedged shoulder to shoulder along the whole route of the funeral procession and stood silently, regardless of comfort. At 11 o'clock, members of the military and civil chancelleries as well as the Minister of Justice assembled at the Palace to attest the burial certificate.

TO THE CATHEDRAL

At midnight the commander of the Royal body guard, General Zirkowitch, the first adjutant to the King, Ministers and high officers of the body guard carried the coffin to Eschloss Cathedral. Torch bearers lit the way through the crowded but silent streets, as thousands who had come to Belgrade to see the funeral were unable to find any accommodation. All street traffic was stopped at 5 o'clock on Thursday morning. The Church bells began tolling when the troops took up their positions.

The picture of the streets at dawn was very impressive and colourful. The brown and blue tunics of the Serbian peasants, richly embroidered with smocks, the Croats with their fez turbans, the Bosnians with their sheepskins, and the Montenegrins with their red caps made a strange contrast with the national costumes of the Albanians, Dalmatians, Macedonians and the brilliant uniforms of the Yugoslavian soldiery, the rich ecclesiastical garments of the Orthodox Greek Church and dignitaries.

THE PROCESSION

At six o'clock the funeral procession was formed and divided into three sections, two military and then the third consisting of the real mourners and the Royal coffin. The latter included all Sokols or sport societies delegations from all Yugoslav cities, members of Parliament, municipal councillors and representatives of numerous societies. Over 100 aeroplanes circled overhead. When the commandant of the troops called the soldiery to attention, a spontaneous shout broke out from the thousands of spectators "Honour to King Alexander—the Martyr."

The procession then began to move slowly forward. Exactly at midday the coffin was placed in a special train to Lodenowaz.—Transocean Kuo Min.

DECKS CLEARED FOR NAVAL TALKS

Japan's Plan For Global Tonnage Basis

London, Oct. 18. It is understood that the British attitude is that Britain would like to see a continuance of the Washington Treaty or something resembling the London Treaty negotiated to replace it. This attitude is shared in by the French and Italians.

As regards Admiral Yamamoto's contention, Britain and the United States are dissatisfied although they enjoy parity on a ratio basis. It is pointed out that both sides naturally had to make concessions for the sake of the Treaty. The United States' attitude, like the British, is one of expectancy towards the Japanese plan.—Reuter.

MISS FISHWICK

Hole

(Special Air-Mail Service)

London, Sept. 28. Great Britain defeated Canada by 7 matches to 2, with 3 halved, in the Women's International match between the two countries yesterday. Britain won the singles by four games to one with three halved, and the foursomes by three to one.

Miss Fishwick played superbly against Miss Mackenzie, the Canadian open champion, whom she beat by 7 and 5. She lost only one hole—the seventh—through missing a putt. She had par figures at all the other outward holes, and Miss Mackenzie was outclassed.

Miss Gourlay had a thrilling match with Mrs. Fraser, and won at the last hole, where she negotiated a stytle.

Miss Pam Barton only halved her game with Mrs. Ford after being dorny 2. At the seventeenth hole she drove into the woods and at the last missed a 10ft. putt.

Miss Kirkham won against Miss Morgan in a remarkable manner. At the last hole she was laid a dead stytle, but lofted her ball into the hole.

In the foursomes Miss Fishwick and Miss Morgan were out in 38 against Mrs. Ford and Miss Mackenzie. They played only one hole badly—the sixth—where Miss Morgan put a spoon shot into a bunker. Miss Mackenzie was the strength of her side, and she was responsible for the British pair being taken to the seventeenth hole.

Miss Barton drove tremendous distances, and with Miss Gourlay gained a very easy win over Mrs. Fraser and Miss Kirkham.

WELSH AMATEUR FINAL

G. B. Roberts (Prestatyn) won the Welsh amateur championship at Prestatyn, beating G. S. Noon (Glamorgan) in the final by 4 and 3.

Roberts played steadily throughout, and was 1 under 4's for the 33 holes. He was not, however, more than 2 up during the morning round, but after a good fight Noon lost three consecutive holes in the afternoon and the match.

SHERINGHAM TOURNAMENT

Another strike broke out at Pecsfeutkirche on Wednesday when three thousand coal miners put down their tools as a protest against the terms of the provisional settlement that ended the recent hunger strike. They declared they would not resume their work until eight per cent. of the wage reduction is cancelled. By the terms of the recent provisional agreement, the settlement of this point was expressly reserved for the future. At any rate this strike would not be fought like the last, that is by hunger and threats to flood the mine, but merely by the suspension of work and round table negotiations.

MELBOURNEOnly French Entry Damaged

London, Oct. 17. The only French entry in the England-Melbourne air race, a Blériot machine, had to be scratched to-day, as it was badly damaged when landing at Le Bourget this morning, on its way to Mildenhall, Suffolk.

To-day's conditions of rain and mist prevented the pilots of twenty aeroplanes assembled at Mildenhall making practice flights.

Brief speeches by two pilots in the Melbourne Air Race and an eye-witness account of the start from Mildenhall Aerodrome will be broadcast by the B.B.C. on October 20, at 9 a.m., 11.15 a.m., 3 p.m., 8 p.m. and midnight.

MACHINE OVERTURNS

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Paris, Oct. 17.

The French Aero Club will probably be compelled to scratch its sole entry in the London-Melbourne air race since the Blériot machine which was to participate with two well-known fliers, Calles and Motneux, at the controls, was seriously damaged in making a landing at Le Bourget airport on Wednesday. One of the wheels broke off in landing and the plane overturned, the two pilots escaping without injury. The machine's landing carriage, however, was badly damaged and it is unlikely that repairs can be made in time for the start of the air race on October 20.

MORE SERIOUS
DEMANDSThe Situation In China

Moscow, October 2.—In an article entitled "New Stage of Japanese Aggression in China," the "Pravda" points out that after the capture of all main strategic passes in the Great Wall, the Japanese aggressors are able to occupy North China by military force in a very short time. Now the headquarters of the Kwangtung Army is persistently trying to open the route leading to Mongolia from Kalgan.

"However," writes the newspaper, "the Japanese insist on still more serious demands. Under the pretext of striving for 'economic co-operation' between China and Japan, Japan is trying to transform China into a Japanese colony, taking possession of all natural resources of China and monopolizing her foreign trade."

"On the other hand, the demand for 'technical co-operation' with China has already found its expression in the construction of a workshop by Japanese naval experts in Shanghai dockyards. It indicates that Japan intends to transform also South China into a vast drilling ground for the forthcoming 'big Continental war'."

"It is necessary," concludes the newspaper, "to regard only in this light all negotiations taking place between local Japanese and Chinese authorities in Peking and Shanghai."

KIANGSU WINS

Trevesa Trophy
Result

The twenty-second bi-annual race for the Trevesa Trophy open to Ships' boats, was held yesterday under the auspices of the Royal Hong Kong Yacht Club and was won by the entry from the s.s. Kiangsu, who actually finished second to that of the Empress of Canada, which was, however, disqualified owing to having used a larger area of sail than allowed by the rules.

Owing to unforeseen circumstances there were only four entries, three finishing.

The boat from the Kiangsu was the first away at the start and held the lead until the Mark Boat where it was compelled to give way to a junk. This gave the Empress of Canada's entry their opportunity and they quickly shot into the lead and finished first.

At the conclusion Mr. A. L. Shields, Commodore of the Yacht Club made a short speech congratulating the winners and expressing his sympathy with the Empress of Canada who were unfortunately disqualified.

Mr. Shields said that owing to unforeseen circumstances lines such as the Java China Japan Line had intended entering failed to do so, since the Tjinegara was expected at 5 o'clock having been standing by the salvage tug "Takoo," while the Douglas Steamship line who always entered the event were unfortunate in that their vessel was leaving port at 5 o'clock.

Jardines were unfortunate in not having any vessel in port.

The speaker congratulated the crew of the Kiangsu as this was the first occasion on which a Butterfield and Swire vessel had won the event.

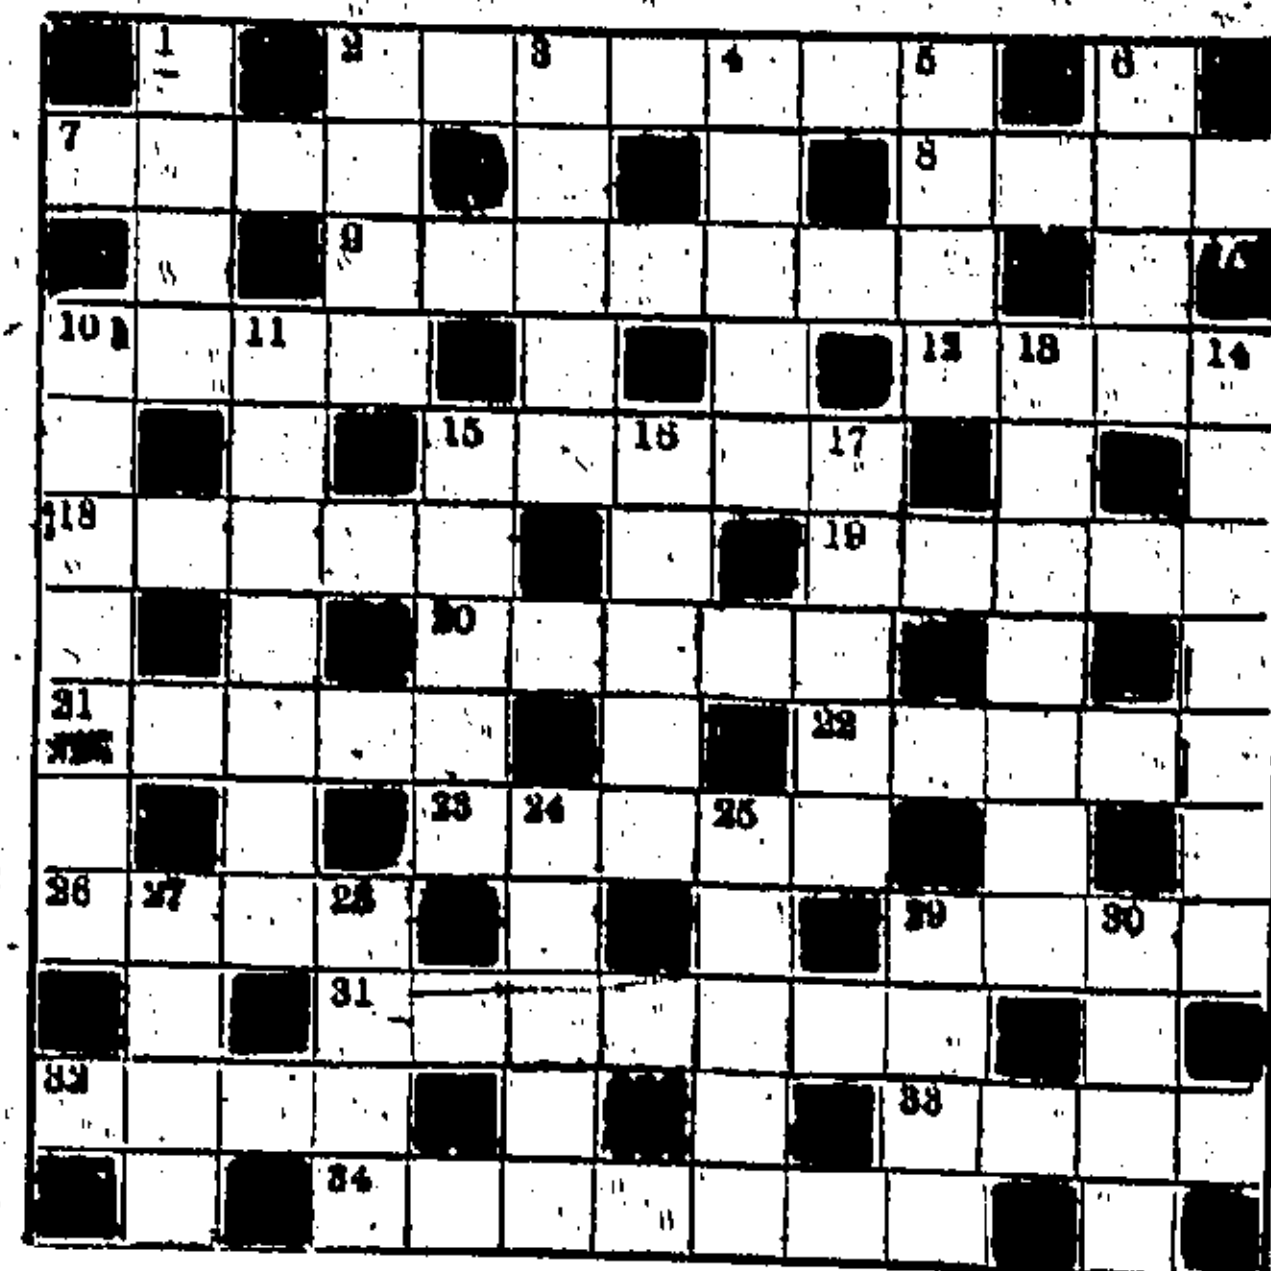

He said it was very unfortunate but they had to keep strictly to the rules of the race and as a result the entry from the Empress of Canada which crossed the line first, had to be disqualified.

He introduced Captain Reid of H.M.S. Folkestone who had acted as one of the judges and who presented the Trevesa Trophy to Mr. Abbs of the winning boat.

The result of the race was:—

LORD MAYOR'S ELECTION

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Sept. 28.

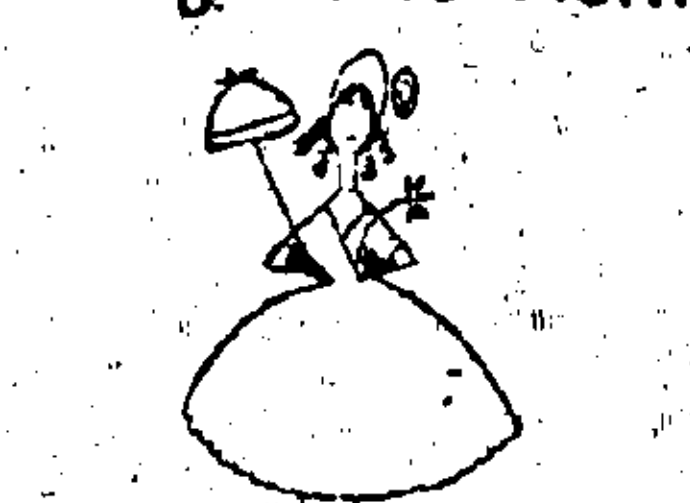

It is most unusual for a new Lord Mayor of London to be elected at Guildhall with his predecessor absent from the quaint ceremonial, as will be the case on Saturday.

Old Corporators recall only one previous instance. That was in 1923, when Lord Mayor Sir Edward Moore had been knocked down by an omnibus outside the Mansion House.

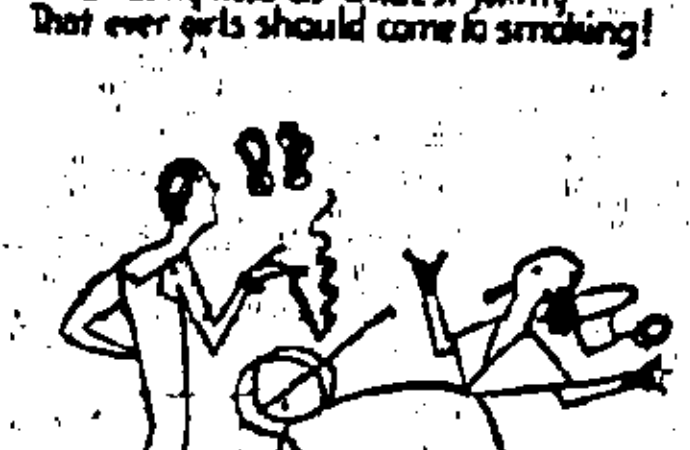

In pursuance of ancient custom, it is the Lord Mayor, with the assistance of his aldermanic brethren, who at the Michaelmas Day ceremony makes the choice of the new Lord Mayor from two named submitted. In practice the choice is not in doubt.

Like the Crown, the Mayoralty cannot fall into abeyance. There is always someone to act.

CURRENT NEWS FROM CHINA
CONSOLIDATION AND SACRIFICEWang Ching Wai's Message
To The Chinese Nation

Wang Ching-wai, President of the Executive Yuan, has issued the following message to the Chinese Nation on the occasion of the twenty-third anniversary of the Republic:—

This National Day being set apart for observance as the anniversary of the birth of our Republic, let us recall with gratitude and pride the glory of the past, and pray with all sincerity for the brightness of the future, but at the same time pledge ourselves to work strenuously and ceaselessly to overcome the difficulties now confronting us.

This is the 23rd Anniversary of the establishment of our Republic, and four years have passed since the development of the national crisis. In regard to the manner of coping with that crisis, some of our compatriots entertain various opinions which, practically speaking, offer only two alternatives. Some think it advisable to endure our trials with patience and work to consolidate the nation's vitality, taking into consideration the fact that our strength is so much inferior to that of other nations. This means to put up with any insult and suffering at a time when we have a task of great responsibility before us, just as in the latter part of the Chou dynasty King Kou Chien, of the Yueh State, went to such an extreme as to sleep on a bed of sticks and taste gall when he nursed vengeance against the State of Wu. Others, however, advocate the policy of fighting even at the sacrifice of our lives, deeming it better to let the nation be broken like jade than be preserved intact like tile. To my mind both these views are indispensable yet not absolutely effective, or to put it another way, although neither may be effective, yet both are indispensable.

Consolidation
Consolidation of the nation's vitality is certainly an essential step at the present moment, inasmuch as our strength, national and social, is far inferior to that of others. But while we work along this line others may do the same, and as they are more progressive in comparison with us in industry, commerce, national economy, and civilization, it is probable that by the time we have attained a little success in the way of consolidation, they will have attained great progress in that direction. Speaking about military preparations, it is obvious that all modern equipment such as heavy guns, battleships, etc. can never be produced by a nation without adequate scientific equipment. At the same time, however, the nation cannot have the necessary capital to provide such equipment unless it has reached a high stage of economic development. Other nations have reached that stage of industrial and commercial progress, while we still remain backward. Is it then absolutely effective to compete with others in the work of consolidation? Moreover, it is doubtful whether others would allow us to take advantage of the opportunity for effecting such consolidation.

It is well known to all of us that the progress of the National Revolution has been more than once impeded by other people whenever it seemed to have achieved some success. Now, why should they wish to handicap the progress of our National Revolution? Firstly, they want to check the growth of the influence of our Revolution. Secondly, it is their intention to nip that influence in the bud, so that our people may become discouraged with its progress and lose their faith as citizens. In short, they aim at obstructing our progress not only spiritually but materially. It is impossible now to enumerate all the work that was accomplished, bit by bit, and through the envy of others has been reduced to dust and ashes by shells and bombs. Once destroyed we do not know when the restoration of such institutes, factories, etc., can be effected, as it takes time for the accumulation of resources. From this it is evident that it seems already too late for consolidation, and that there is no way to effect such consolidation even if we want to put it into effect. Thus, we have to admit with regret that consolidation, though indispensable, may not be possible.

Sacrifice
Sacrifice is indispensable. Should we lack the resolution to make sacrifice, not only the life of the country but also the prestige of the nation would come to an end. Nevertheless, sacrifice by a small number of people should not be considered as sufficient; sacrifice by the majority is necessary. At the same time, partial sacrifice is not enough, and it is necessary to make united and systematic sacrifice, which alone can be actually effective and be of real value. But is it possible for China to carry out such sacrifice by united efforts and systematically? The question must be answered in the negative. Why? Because of the fact that the nation is not united at present, either militarily, politically, or economically, thus making centralization impossible. Consequently, no sacrifice can be effected by united effort and systematically. Some modern countries work on the principle of "Democracy," and others "Non-democracy." In such countries as Russia and Germany, which adopt the non-democratic policy, attention is directed to centralization, but centralization is also effected in the United States, which is a democratic country. Immediately after the declaration of war on Germany, the strength of the United States and its people was centralized and handed over to President Wilson to be used at his discretion. In addition to military strength, all the railways, steamships, etc. no matter whether they were the property of individuals or companies, were brought under the control of the Government—commandeered for utilization by the State. Even the bread and beef consumed by the people as food were under strict control of the Government.

Centralize Your Strength
Such arrangements do not apply in wartime only, for the United States Congress has recently conferred tremendous authority upon President Roosevelt in order to enable him to cope with the economic situation and its problems. This serves to show that no matter whether a country adopts democracy or any other form of government, it is necessary for it to centralize its strength whenever there is occasion for doing so. What about the condition of China to-day? Probably the situation needs no special explanation from me. If a frog is cut into pieces, each piece is still capable of muscular reaction. This is known as "partial independence" in biology, but the case is different in regard to human beings, who are subject to death directly a main artery is severed. It is true that the strength of the "partial independence" of a dissected frog seems very great, but just because there is this "partial independence" no centralization is possible, and the quivering mass is unable to resist with united force, and is in no way equal to the state of a living object of lower class. In the case of a human being, the body is subject to the direction of the brain and the beating of the heart; the arms are subject to the body, and the fingers to the arms. Owing to lack of unified organization either politically, militarily, or economically, it is impossible for China to effect centralization, or for sacrifice to be carried out systematically and with united efforts. Thus, our strength of sacrifice is insignificant and fragmentary, and we have to confess with sorrow that there is no certainty that our sacrifice, even if carried out, will bring about any positive result, though it is indispensable.

What Is Needed
Seeing that consolidation and sacrifice, while indispensable, are not absolutely effective, the question to be faced is how are we to overcome the national crisis? It seems to me that neither consolidation nor sacrifice will bring about any effect, inasmuch as we have no faith—no common faith—but should we have such belief—a common belief—and exert our utmost to the last breath to consolidate our strength, we can carry our sacrifice in the long run to a successful conclusion. Our personality will be maintained though our lives may not be preserved, and though our country may be lost, its prestige will endure for ever.

Now what is our belief, and our common belief? It is the "San Min Chu I" (The Three People's Principles). It was pointed out clearly by our late Party Leader in the "San Min Chu I" that a national crisis might arise, and was liable to develop at any moment. He made this prophesy clearly and honestly. He never tried to conceal the weakness of the country and the nation, and realized that, unless one has the courage to "acknowledge one's sickness, one will not dare to have it cured. It is stated in the will of our late Party Leader that "for forty years I have devoted myself to the cause of National Revolution, the aim of which is to secure for China a position of independence and equality among nations." It was thus admitted that China was neither free nor regarded as an equal among the nations therefore our Leader devoted himself to the cause of National Revolution to seek both independence and equality. This serves to show the critical condition of our country, and the resolution of our late Leader to work for its salvation.

The Late Dr. Sun
As to the methods to be adopted for the relief of the national crisis, these have been clearly indicated by our late Party Leader in the "San Min Chu I." He taught us never to forget the origin of the existent civilization of China and, so far as the modern civilization of the world is concerned, never to fall in the endeavour to keep ahead of others. Our late Party Leader neither despised the existent civilization of China, nor did he aim at the restoration of the old usages, which would mean merely regarding one's self without looking at others and making comparisons. Our Leader compared the existent civilization of China with that of other parts of the world, and pointed out its merits, instructing us never to forget the origin of that culture. This is a good foundation for the rejuvenation of the nation. Nevertheless, our Leader was not satisfied with the mere preservation of our existent civilization, and encouraged us to seek to acquire the modern civilization of the world. In regard to this latter, he did not mean we should take a "going with the stream" policy, but to forge ahead of others. In other words, he wanted us to adopt the most progressive methods and follow the best of modern civilization, spiritually or materially. This is another sound foundation for the rehabilitation of the nation.

Having noted the cause of the national crisis and resolving to work for the relief of it, we must observe the spirit of refraining from forgetting the origin of our civilization and as the same time determine to keep ahead of others. As long as there is breath in our bodies we should exert our utmost for the consolidation of our strength, and in case of emergency, we must carry out any sacrifice. In this way the life and prestige of our country will be maintained, and even if it should happen that the country did not survive, the prestige of the nation will last for ever.

We must note that consolidation and sacrifice are not contradictory to each other, but there is a close connection between them. In other words, sacrifice cannot be carried out effectively without consolidation. The object of consolidation is to enable the strength of sacrifice to be greater and stronger. I do not mean to say that we are not to make any sacrifice under the pretext of consolidation. Because sacrifice is indispensable, it is all the more necessary to work for consolidation, and unless our strength has been consolidated, sacrifice cannot be carried out with effect. Some people are of opinion that consolidation is a weak policy and that sacrifice is reckless. Such a view is utterly wrong. We are not qualified to talk about consolidation when we have not the resolution for carrying out sacrifice. At the same time, sacrifice will be in vain when our strength is not well consolidated. With the resolution for sacrifice, consolidation will not be meaningless, and when the

MYSTERY SHIP

Regular Schedule
Without Cargo

"Considerable interest has been aroused in local shipping circles by the reference to the vessel Doggersbank which has been plying between Singapore and Java ports for some time past without carrying a pound of cargo or a single passenger," says the Singapore Free Press.

It was reported that these mysterious voyages had occurred so often that shipping men were expressing curiosity as to the explanation of a most unusual state of affairs. The Doggersbank is not in port at present, so that we have been unable to seek enlightenment from the Master, Captain H. Hodder, but from other sources we have obtained a number of highly interesting facts.

According to Lloyd's Register, the Doggersbank is a single deck oil burning vessel of 309 tons gross and 219 tons net. She was built in January, 1933, by N. V. Industriele Maatschappij De Noord, at Alblasdamm. Her owners are given as N. V. Doggersbank and she sails under the Dutch flag.

It is suggested that the Doggersbank came to the East to engage in the local trade. She is believed to have arrived about six months ago and to have made voyages between Singapore and ports in Java. As a result of this new arrival, freights on certain ships already engaged in the traffic were lowered, but the Doggersbank, being privately owned, or alternatively her Master having full power as the agent of the owners, offered still lower rates.

Ceased To Complete

Suddenly the Doggersbank ceased to compete, but continued plying between Singapore and Java ports without carrying a pound of cargo or a single passenger.

With her Master and crew of 12 she does trip after trip in this manner. It is suggested that payment is being made by interested parties to ensure that the Doggersbank does not seek cargo or passengers and the sum mentioned in this connection is 4,000 guilders a month. The cost of running such a small steamer cannot be so great as to absorb the whole of this amount, and if the facts as communicated to us are correct the Doggersbank is making a regular profit cruising between this country and Java.

strength is well consolidated, sacrifice will turn out to be of real value. For the last 60 or 70 years China has been allowing others to advance, so it is by no means easy to talk about consolidation now. We must not forget the proud heritage of the past, but we must at the same time foster the spirit of "running ahead," trying to consolidate our strength from day to day and step by step without ceasing. In this way our strength of sacrifice must become steadily greater and stronger, and the effort and energy thus spent on consolidation and sacrifice will be sure to bring about this desired salvation of our country and preserve the prestige of the nation.

NEW YORK STOCK AND COMMODITY QUOTATIONS

AMERICAN ORIENTAL FINANCE CORPORATION AND S. E. LEVY & CO.

New York, Oct. 17.
The American Oriental Finance Corporation's report through their New York agents, Messrs. E. A. Pierce & Co., states:—

Stocks:—The action of the market was disappointing, in that the early strength showed no follow through. On the other hand, there was no particular pressure to sell. The market still looks like making a slow and irregular struggle upward.

Wheat:—The Trade was a moderate seller. Prices were down late in the day on the easiness of Corn from profit-taking. The market may be two-sided, pending fresh Washington developments.

Cotton:—Moderate activity was again reported in the cotton-goods markets. Trade demand for cotton was less urgent and the advance attracted small hedging and professional selling. The market was without any particular feature, but the tone was steady.

Rubber:—Traders sold off on the weakness of the London market, the drop in Sterling and the lack of outside interest. Dealers were the principal sellers here, but no outside speculative interest is in evidence. The market was steady, but dull.

New York, Oct. 17.
Messrs. S. E. Levy & Company's report, through their New York agents, Messrs. White, Weld & Co., states:—

Stocks:—We still think that the narrow trading does not alter the longer outlook for some gradual improvement in prices. We favour scale purchases. Business done: 680,000 shares.

Bonds:—United States Government issues and high-grade were a shade easier. Second-grade bonds were slightly better.

Wheat:—While ultimately bullish, we would avoid bulge buying. Considering the supply positions, we think that purchase of May corn in Chicago against sales of May wheat in Winnipeg will be a promising straddle. Total sales: Wheat, 23,508,000 bushels; Corn, 13,470,000 bushels.

Cotton:—Retail sales in the cotton-goods markets are showing an improvement. We think that purchases on setbacks for moderate profits are advisable.

Rubber:—The market was quiet. A cautious buying attitude is preferable. Total sales: 247, lots.

American Weather Report—7 P.M.
Wheat:—The Southwest is very cloudy and there was some useful rain.

Cotton:—The Northwest is rainy but the weather is cooler.

The Market

Favourable factors prior to the opening of the market were:—

1. Interest is centered upon President Roosevelt's address before the American Bankers Association Convention next Wednesday. Traders are hoping for some clarification of the Government's monetary policy. 2. Speculative activity remains at a low ebb, but brokerage circles report a cautious accumulation for investment purposes.

Unfavourable factor:—Sentiment favours the constructive side, but rallies lack follow through.

Wall Street is narrowly irregular. Movements are mostly of minor fractions. Steel Corp. shares are inclined to be heavy.

Recessions fail to bring out any important liquidation and the underlying sentiment is cheerful, but a continued quiet and drifting market seems to be indicated.

JUDGE WANG TO RETURN

Mission To Canton Completed

(From Our Special Correspondent)
Canton, October 18.

Having completed his mission of explaining the policies of the National Government to the military and civilian officials here, Dr. Wang Chung Hui, a member of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang and judge of the World Court, will leave Canton this afternoon for Hong Kong on his way to Shanghai and Nanking.

The judge said that his visit to Canton turned out to be a success after interviewing the leaders. Nanking's policies were received with an open mind by the leaders here. These men have also set forth their views, which are to be conveyed to Nanking by Dr. Wang. Declaring that the political situation gives ground for high hopes, the eminent jurist did not elaborate his point for the simple reason that Nanking's reactions to the Canton terms are not known.

In the meantime, the Kwangtung Provincial Kuomintang and the City Kuomintang are electing delegates to the Fifth National Congress, which is to meet in Nanking on November 12. It is certain that, apart from the elected representatives, leading members of the Central Executive or Supervisory Committee will not be able to take part in the meeting owing to pressure of official duties here.

Mr. Hsiao Fu Chen, intransigent Kuomintang leader, does not share the optimism of Dr. Wang Chung Hui and said that whether there should be any rapprochement between Nanking and Canton is to be decided finally by the Central Authorities. He added that formal motions to the Congress from the South-west are based on the circular telegram of September 8.

"Going On The Dole!"

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Oct. 2.

Dr. Inge addressed his last meeting as Dean of St. Paul's "before I go on the dole," as he put it—when speaking to a meeting of the new clergy at Church House, Westminster, London.

These were some of his remarks: "The church can be filled by providing what are called bright services, topical sermons and discreet advertising."

"Our Church is suffering very much from what I would call demoralisation—from the superstition that we have failed unless we can get the majority, or a very large number of people, to vote for us or come to hear us. There is nothing in the teaching of the New Testament which suggests that there is likely to be an inconvenient crowd gathered at the narrow gates. (Laughter.)"

"The Church had been backward in encouraging or giving its sanction to various movements which aimed at improving both the environment and the nature of the human race."

"Sloppy Socialism."

"I am thinking on the one side of well-considered social reforms and on the other of those movements connected with eugenics."

The Church, however, was not primarily an engine of social reform, but of spiritual redemption.

"Do not let us propound schemes of sloppy Socialism and call them Christian politics and economics," exclaimed Dr. Inge.

"We have no right to assume that only our own political friends have the mind of Christ."

MAGNATE'S PURCHASE

C. V. Starr Buys Insurance Co.

New York, Oct. 8.
Mr. C. V. Starr, of Shanghai, has bought control of the United States Life Insurance Co., an 84-year-old concern with assets of U.S. $6,176,989 more than U.S. $27,000,000 of insurance in force, it was announced here to-day.

Mr. Starr said that he intends to extend the operations of the United States Life abroad. The company already is writing business in Canada.

In order to speed up this expansion of operations, one of the company's actuaries, Mr. J. F. R. Loutin, is going to Shanghai in November to study life insurance conditions in the Far East from the headquarters there of the Asia Life Insurance Co., of which Mr. Starr is a director and was formerly president.

Mr. Starr said he feels that the present moment offers a splendid opportunity to an American firm in the foreign field, most of the major American life companies having declined to write business abroad for the past several years.

There will be no changes in the personnel of the United States Life as result of the passage of control to the Shanghai Insurance man, direction of the company being left in the hands of the present management, Mr. Starr said.

THE EXCHANGE MARKET

MESSRS. ROZA BROS.

A sharp reaction was recorded in Silver prices in London yesterday. Prices were a penny down at 23 1/2 and 24. The drop was attributed to profit taking. An extensive business was done during the day at varying rates up to a farthing quotations. The price in New York was 54 1/2 down. In New York Sterling opened at 4.94 1/2 and closed at 4.93 1/2.

Market

Easy conditions were evident at the start followed by an extremely weak market. Business was done at rates considerably under the nominal opening list, a circumstance which was not obtained for a very long time past. Subsequently the market reacted sharply, the closing tone at 1 p.m. was steady to firm.

Sterling

Buyers started to bid immediately after the opening at 1/7 1/2, sellers reluctant to quote. Buying rates then began to recede rapidly with transactions done at 1/7 1/2, 1/7 5/16, 1/7 1/2, 1/7 3/16, 1/7 1/2 and 1/7 1/16 for various deliveries. At the last rate mentioned buying pressure subsided and the market almost immediately veered, sellers offering 1/7 1/16, 1/7 1/2, 1/7 3/16 with business arranged at 1/7 1/2 for cash, 1/7 1/2 December, 1/7 1/2 December and cash, 1/7 1/2 December and cash and 1/7 9/16 for cash and December, closing at 1 p.m. with sellers at 1/7 1/2 November/December and 1/7 9/16 January, buyers at 1/7 9/16 November and probably December and 1/7 1/2 January.

U.S. Dollars

Opened with buyers at 40 1/2. The buying rate then receded, rapidly with transactions done subsequently at 39 1/2 January. Later the market reacted and business was done at 39 1/2, 39 1/2 and 40 for near delivery. The market closed at 1 p.m. with sellers at 40 for November/December, buyers probably at 40 1/16 for near delivery.

Shanghai Market

Business was done during the course of the morning at 113. Later 113 1/2 and 120 were also arranged for November and December. There were sellers at 120, buyers at 120 1/2.

Shanghai Dollars

Opened at a level lower than yesterday. Sterling at 1/4 and Dollars at 34. Both currencies weakened. Sterling right down to 1/3 1/2 and Dollars to 32 but at this stage the market reacted and at closing time Sterling was obtainable at 1/3 1/2 and Dollars at 32 1/2. The tone was given as steady.

Silver Stocks as per advices of 9th instant estimated at Tael 295,148,000 as against Tael 353,378,000 a year ago.

IN THE AFTERNOON

Sterling

Conditions in the afternoon continued erratic, opening with a buying rate of 1/7 1/2 the rate rapidly lost ground until it touched 1/7 1/2 at which rate a small business was done, subsequently reacting to a business rate of 1/7 1/2 for October/November and 1/7 3/16 for November. The market closed with sellers at 1/7 1/2 and likely buyers at 1/7 3/16.

U.S. Dollars

Business was reported in the afternoon at 39 1/2 for near and towards the close 39 1/2 was also indicated as having been done for cash. The market closed with sellers at 39 1/2 near, 39 1/2 1/16 November, and 39 1/2 1/16 December, buyers at 39 1/2 for near, 39 1/2 1/16 November and probably 39 1/2 1/16 December.

Yen

Gulders

Business done at 121, closing with likely sellers at perhaps 1/2 a point better.

Shanghai Market

Sterling opened at 1/3 1/2 and Dollars at 32 1/2 in the afternoon session. The market was weakish, last advised rates were 1/3 1/2 and 32 1/2.

C. G. GUTHRIE

The Lamport and Holt Line have appointed as their superintendent engineer Mr. Charles Guthrie, who has been engineering manager at Liverpool for the past 13 years for Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd.

Mr. Guthrie is a son of the late Mr. Charles Guthrie, of London, who was a member of the shipowning and ship broker firm of Guthrie, McDonald Hood and Co. He spent five years' apprenticeship to marine engineering with Messrs. Ross and Duncan on Clyde, and in order to obtain oil engine experience was two years with Messrs. Rogers and Co., of Plymouth. He served in the steamers of Messrs. Patrick Henderson and Co., running from the Clyde and Mersey to Rangoon, until he had obtained all his Board of Trade certificates, after which he joined Messrs. Denby Bros., of Dumbarton, as engineering draughtsman, eventually becoming assistant to Mr. Wm. Denny, who specialised in diesel engine work. In 1921 he was appointed engineering manager in Liverpool for Messrs. Harland and Wolff, which appointment he has held ever since.

Mr. Guthrie took up his appointment with Messrs. Lamport and Holt on October 1.

JAPANESE TO END POOL

News has been received in London that the Japanese ship-breaking pool is being wound up. It will be recalled that several months ago a pool of shipbreakers and shipbrokers was formed in Japan with a pool of shipbrokers in London, to acquire tonnage for demolition purposes. From time to time there have been rumours that the progress of affairs was unsatisfactory and we now understand that when the business actually in hand is completed, the "pool" will cease operations.

GERMAN SHARE MARKET

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

REICHSBANK RETURN

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, Oct. 17.
The Reichsbank return dated October 15 issued on Wednesday reveals further relaxation on the tension evidenced at the end of September when the monthly and quarterly settlements coincided. Eighty-one per cent. of the special short-term demands made on the Reichsbank have been repaid. Gold stock increased by 1.3 million marks to 79.8, while holdings in foreign currencies were unchanged at 29 million marks, making a total, in note-cover, increase of 1.3 million marks to 81.1 million marks against 79.8 on September 29. The note-circulation declined 75.2 million to 897.5 million Reichsmarks.
